Dear Mr. Petersen:

Thank you for your note dated 12/8/10, which I received on 12/20/10.

You say that you wonder how I spend my time now. I spend a lot of it in answering letters. I also spend a lot of time in other writing that is independent of my correspondence. As a basis for this other writing I need information from books. But prisoners here are not allowed to have many books in their cells at any one time, so I have to take extensive notes on the books I read in order to retain the information for later use. Taking these notes costs me a great deal of time.

Also, lawyers who are both competent and honest are a rarity, and as a result I have to do a lot of work that the lawyers should be doing, and conflicts with the lawyers cost me quite a bit of time.

You invite me to list a few things that you can send me. There are ~~very~~ very few things that people on the outside are allowed to send to prisoners here. But if you would like to get me a subscription to The Atlantic (magazine), I would greatly appreciate it.

Thanks,

Ted Kaczynski
